

Khartoum North Locality is one of old localities and used to be called Khartoum North Municipality in the past and was among the first municipalities of Khartoum State. It extends Southward and Westward to the Nile River, Northward till the border with River Nile State and Eastward to Sharq Elneel Locality.

The inhabitants of this town are composed of various Sudanese tribes. There are 4 sectors within this locality which are Central Bahri, Eastern Bahri, Northern Bahri and Northern Rural Bahri which encompasses the Petroleum Refinery at Aljaily. The locality has the largest industrial area in the State. It also accommodates a number of public universities like Faculties of Agriculture and Veterinary of University of Khartoum, Al-Zaeem Al-Azhari University and others. Within it also there are four of the Popular Armed Forces, the National Prison besides houses of a number of important figures like the houses of the President of the Republic and a number of ministers. It enjoys a significant renaissance in cultural, social and sports activities. Despite its extended area it experiences no significant crimes that affect peace and tranquility. This is due to its coherent society and the extensive and well managed spread of police forces and the nature of its society.
